A Startling Statement.

It has been said by those who investigated the matter carefully that, although at the age of 45 fully 80% of men are established in whatever pursuit they follow and are in receipt of incomes in excess of their expenditure, at the age of 60 it has been found that 95% are dependent upon their daily earnings, or upon their children for support. Many, no doubt, read the despatch from Detroit which recently appeared in the Canadian papers, and which described the condition of a man who but a little more than forty years ago was a "financial power" in that city, who had a "palatial home" on one of the most fashionable thoroughfares, he entertained lavishly, and to whom every person, high and low was prepared to pay homage. But the fates were against him. He suffered serious financial losses, and when he began to go down hill he found it was properly greased for the occasion. His friends deserted him like rats from a sinking ship, and now at 80 years of age, after his day's labour, he wends his way to the city with the bent, broken down old men who have influence enough to have their names on the city's pay roll.

The Moral is that out of your abundance something should be laid aside for declining years, and invested where thieves cannot reach it, and where one cannot be deprived of it in any possible way. This means is afforded you under the Canadian Government Annuities Act which the Parliament of Canada passed in the Session 1908, and which received the unanimous support of both sides of the House.

You may get all information by applying at the Post Office or by addressing the Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa.

Health Officer Needed

The time has now arrived in our municipal career when it is not only necessary but imperative that a Medical Health Officer should be appointed. The public have a right to know and feel that the health of the community is being well looked after.

Contagious diseases from time to time arise. These we learn from authoritative source are more frequent in mining camps than open prairie towns. Is not the health of our families an essential constituent of our civic government? why not then appoint a properly qualified official for that position? Our present Sanitary Inspector admitted on all sides as the best official for Chief of Police etc. is not acquainted with the contagious movements of bacilli nor does he study histology and pathology. A Medical Health officer is needed. It is up to the council to appoint one.

JEWELLED BOOKS.

Volumes Bound in Gold and Set With Precious Stones.

There was an ancient legend to the effect that the famous "Golden Fleece"
was a book covered in sheepskin,
bearing the transcription of the bas-
ter metals into pure gold.

The Roman scrolls were adorned with bosses of gold or gems, and their leaves having been smoothed with gold, were set with precious oil.
The Byzantine emperors were great patrons of books and "the Byzantine coatings" or book covers were famous for their magnificence; they were of gold, silver, copper, gilt, with jewels, and these massive tomes were carried in imperial processions.

"The Silver Book" of Philippius, Bishop of Moscow, a translation of the New Testament by Jerome.

"Your books are covered with precious stones," said he, "while Christ died
naked, before the gate of His temple";
while he had been compared, the saying of said the Persian poet, reciting the Mohammedan scriptures: "The Koran was given to reform the conduct of men, and men have only trouble of embarking in sins."

The books produced in early centuries of the middle ages, were of remarkable beauty, inwardly and outwardly; religious manuscripts were written in gold, and the leaves within while their covers were of silver, gold and enamel encrusted with gems.
They were bestowed as splendid gifts
by bishops and princes on monastic houses and churches, where they were placed on the altar or chained to a desk.

Such chained books were named
"Catenaria"; a rough outer covering of leather, then a thin skin, or skin, and later of "chinchilla", a sort of leather, or "sendal", a coarse silk.
Such coverings were also called "chemises"; these rare books were placed in caskets, in shrines or "cappose"; in Ireland they were laid in satchels, otherwise named "polaires".
Bookbinding possessed a peculiar beauty of its own.

There were secular bookbinders in the middle ages who gradually formed themselves into guilds or craftsmen.

The monks also entered the arts
of composition, calligraphy, illumination, bookbinding, setting of jewels, enamelling and work on leather, silver and gold.

Bookbinders in Italy and Sitten were granted unlimited rights of hunting
that they might obtain "stag hide
for their books".

These early pieces were great book lovers, and signs of their collections are famous, though now dispersed far and wide, sometimes reappear-ing as treasures cast upon the shores
of some mountain library.

Charlemagne was a great patron of bookbinding, surrounding himself
with Italian workmen; Theophilus, Queen of the Lombards, presented a newest Gospel, overlaid with gold silver and jewels, to the Cathedral of Monza.

The Dukes of Burgundy were renowned for their libraries. The "Boetius" of Charlemagne had five large red velvet sets with five large rubbles; another Burgundian book was bound with gold with 35 pearls of green glass with 15 "silver" instead of "gold" for the part "silver".

These sets were also attached to some of these costly tomes; they were little bars of silver or gold, forming "supports" for the pages, which were bound in damask satin and velvet encrusted by gold.

Henry IV, King of France, was possessed of a book which was covered in red velvet, clasped with platinum and studded with jewels.

queen, Mary, had a book in black,

of jewels by the middle class, with special permission to adorn their masters and devotional books with diamonds; they might have four diamonds on their books, the nobles
five and the princesses many number.

A FLORAL DEPARTMENT

C. P. R. Takes Interest in Flower Bed
as Well as Road Bed

That a great railroad should take an interest in the flower bed as well as the road bed is not surprising, yet it has been the case. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has a large department which dispenses freely to the Agents from the Atlantic to the Pacific, flower seeds, bulbs, shrubs, etc., for the beautification of its stations. All who have travelled over the Canadian Pacific have seen the beauty of the flower beds at some way-side station, not only in this country but in Europe. To a traveller who sees nothing of the beauty of the flower beds in a town, the flower beds in a flower bed in a beautiful design. There is an instant desire to see more of the town. The Canadian Pacific is aggressive and progressive. The first transcontinental road has given the Pacific
now a floral belt across the continent.

Just now the annual distribution of flower beds is being made, the seeds, etc., being sent out in the spring, and over half a million are being forwarded to the employees along the road. After sixteen years of operation the Canadian Pacific has an annual expenditure of $1,000,000 for the maintenance of its stations, and this is a result that is encouraging not only to the management of the road, but to the lovers of flowers that travel along it.

Such annual distributions of flower beds are produced as follows:

The Origin of Spectacles.

An eminent authority has recently asserted some widely accepted opinions on the subject of spectacles.

For instance, he states that the earliest mention of historical data to that the Egyptians, the Greeks and the Romans glasses were unknown.

This is in contradiction of the common statement that the Romans glasses were invented in the 1st century B.C.

It is also asserted that the earliest spectacles were invented in the 13th century. Spectacles, we are told, were invented by two Italians, Armati and Spina, at the end of the 13th century.

At first only lenses were used and about two centuries concave lenses were employed. Thomas Young discovered the use of cylindrical lenses
in 1801, and the astronomer Airy applied them for the correction of short-sight.
Glasses, however, did not become popular
until the 18th century.

It is interesting to note that spectacles were invented in 1801 and became popular in 1800.

Convenient English Custom.

In England a small custom, or white bell-shaped drinking glass inverted over the top, is always kept in every bedroom and freshly filled morning and night. This is a most convenient custom where there is not running water in or near the room.

It is also a custom to have a pair of glasses in the pocket
of the coat, and to take them out when one is about to go to bed.

Paring an Elephant's Nails.

When an elephant is to be captured it is necessary to capture the nails to grow to an abnormal length
thus the necessity for the careful paring of the nails. After the elephant has been securely roped the nails are cut with a saw—London Sketch.

Kidneys Wrong?

If they are you are in danger.
When through weakness or indis-
cretion the kidneys filter the impurities
from the blood, the swelling that follows comes at once. Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel, Diabetes, Inflammation, etc., are all symptoms of kidney trouble. Dr. Morse's Indian Kidney Pills contain a most effective remedy which strengthens the body
and removes the kidneys so that they do their work thoroughly and well.

T. B. BRANDON Editor

Coleman, Friday, December 9, 1910

The Editor of the Miner without going into any personalities, desires to refute absolutely the infamous lying statements of the junior editor of the Enterprise in regard to the formation of the Slavish union. We regard the question as dead.

NOTE and COMMENT

Joe Martin still reigns in East St. Pancras.

The Naval bill may be submitted to the people next fall; A Canadian navy manned with Canadian officers and men still holding to their British connection, is a navy that will command the support of the moderate elector.

The A. G. and W. has been given a temporary requiem burial.

H. G. Goodeve returned from Nelson last week. Mr. Goodeve was away in search of good health. He is slowly improving.

Mrs. and Miss Westwood returned from an extensive trip in B. C. on Saturday last.

We are pleased to note that Mayor Cameson's declaration that money must be conserved for a road to West Coleman as well as a bridge in that section. This will be probably the most important work of the new council.

Councillor James is strong on points of order. Although, sometimes, he is ordered out of his point.

The next meeting of the Board of Trade should deal strongly with the brieleyard question.

Balfour and the referred policy have not made a very great "hit" with the British electors.

The C. P. R. has sold 3,000,000 acres of land in Alberta this year. This is only one small item of development.

Lethbridge and Macleod now have no similar grievances, each having obtained an estimate for a substantial post-office.

The council should readily consent to a public meeting in January. The electors of the town should know the state of affairs even if they are in a highly satisfactory state.

Coleman is to be made the judicial seat of the Pass.

Why Coleman should not have a new government Post office is a new problem. The town is entitled to it.

PRESS COMMENTS

Whatever may happen now there is one comfort about these British elections, and that is that Joseph Martin will be just close enough to any government to keep it in the straight and narrow way. — Albertan Calgary.

"Sweet are the uses of adversity" says the poet. But will poetry prove sufficient to console the A. & G. W. gang? — News Nelson

We must admit that the man who control the destinies of the Miner is a better writer than those who edit this paper. — Enterprise Blairmore.

The Coleman Miner will issue on Dec. 17th, a special Xmas edition. It will contain 24 pages of Xmas Yule-tide stories. The history of the coal companies of the Pass will be given and the development work of the prospects in the nearly coal fields. Advertisers are fast seizing hold of this edition as a splendid advertising medium.

The Miner after careful investigation finds that Coleman's license by-law is on the whole more moderate than that of most towns. Our license law pinches the shoe of the right - outside parties.

The Miner extends to the bereaved families in Bellevue its sincerest sympathy in the hour of their great sorrow. The whole Pass has been stricken with subdued grief at the astounding news of the disaster.

WHERE MANUEL FLED

FORTRESS OF GIBRALTAR AND ITS MILITARY GOVERNOR.

Key to the Mediterranean Was Once a Most Untidy City, But It Has Been Renovated and Is Now Remarkable for Its Cleanliness—It is an Old Fortress and Was Military Base for Saracens.

When King Manuel fled from Portugal he quite naturally sought refuge at Gibraltar for the simple reason that it was the safest as well as the nearest port where he could proceed. Furthermore, since Great Britain is supposed to have guaranteed the integrity of Manuel's rule it was probably as wise a move as he could have made. Gibraltar is a strong fortress, now commanding the entrance to the Mediterranean Sea and is regarded as the greatest naval stronghold of Great Britain. Besides a small town at its foot, it consists of a mountainous region rising to 1,400 feet above the sea level. The rock is perforated by numerous caverns, the largest of which, called the Halls of St. Michael, have an entrance about 1,000 feet deep. The fortifications of Gibraltar is, as a rule, healthful, though the period from July to November, when the greatest heat prevails, is attended with some risks to visitors from northern and cooler climates. Of late years, the energetic measures adopted by the engineer officers to improve the drainage, roads with strikingly good results, have greatly diminished the death rate. Gibraltar is as remarkable now for its cleanly appearance as, before 1814, it was for being one of the dirtiest towns in Europe. Since 1704, Gibraltar has been a British possession. The first record of its natural strength being used for defensive or aggressive purposes was in 711 A.D. When the Saracens passing into Spain under Tariq Ibrayyel, a general of the Saracen forces, the conqueror of the Visigothic kingdom, fortified it as a base of operations, and a ready point of access from the Barbary coast. From this chateau it took the name Gebel-Tarik, or Hill of Tarik, of which Gibraltar is a corruption.

The population of the town, including a garrison of approximately 6,000 men, is now 10,000, divided between both civil and military authorities and the governor-general, who at present is Sir Archibald Hunter, is also commander and chief of the garrison. Garrison posts of military secrecy it is forbidden to photograph, but photos are frequently made from a strip of land known as "Neutral Ground," separating Spain from Gibraltar.

Reynolds and Two Pictures.
Sir Joshua Reynolds having become a great man, it was but natural that the town council of Plympton, near Plymouth, where he was born, should elect him mayor. In acknowledgment of his honor, the council sent a portrait of himself and presented it to the corporation. He wrote to a friend asking him to see that the picture was hung in a good light. This friend not only did so, but hung a poor picture alongside of it, in order to expose the merits of Sir Joshua's work by contrast. Then he informed Reynolds of all the trouble he had taken in thanking him Sir Joshua told him the poor picture had been painted by himself (Reynolds) in early life.

Reversed the Order.
A young clergyman who was a shy disposition, after an embarrassing start at his first marriage ceremony and unwittingly reversed the usual order of the service, thus making the bridegroom promise to love and obey the bride, was so mortified that he burst unnoticed at the time, but shortly afterward it dawned upon the father of the bride that a mistake had occurred, and he said to the clergyman: "I know Mr. Black, you have made John to promise to love and obey his daughter. Ah, well," he added after a pause and with a sly look at his better half, "I suppose it won't matter much; it generally comes to that in the end anyway."

All Arranged.

Tom Flanagan, the Toronto man who used to manage Tom Longboat, the great Indian runner, has not many more pictures in his studio. One day a couple of years ago he was led to bet a bunch of money on a foot race. His man, who was the favorite, was beaten. After the race, who was a good sportsman, a man who was believed to have stood in with the pair of runners, said to Flanagan:

"I don't see what you have to kick about. The start was by mutual consent."

"I ain't kickin' about that," snapped back Flanagan. "What I'm sore at is that the finish was by mutual consent too."

ABUNDING IN WEALTH.

Vast Wild Region Will Be Opened by Canada's New G.T.P. Line.

A party of prospectors and prospectors have just returned from the Yellowhead section in British Columbia, just north of the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, where the big Transcontinental will enter this country, so rich in scenic grandeur, fertile valleys and mineral wealth. Several construction camps are already at work at the very foothills of these towering mountains. The excitement of penetrating this range will be enormous, but the difficulties of the undertaking does not daunt those at the head of the great enterprise, as surveys and explorations by competent engineers prove that the new railway will be easily openable, the agriculture and the mineral is one of the finest in the Dominion. All who have returned to Ottawa from this country speak of it as incomparably rich in every respect.

One of the men interviewed, declared the Yellowhead country the most wonderful on the American continent. "It is like a thrilling adventure," he declared, "in which each step takes you right on the edge of the main line. Fearing that the signal might not be taken seriously, Jimmy repeated it, and then gave it a third and a fourth time. The switch-tender, who was the approaching engine, was unmissably running away, and the rules warned him in big, black-faced type that under such circumstances it was to leave the switch set for the switch-tender, who wanted to meet his fate on the main line. As between obeying the rules and honoring a dying man, the switch-tender allowed Jimmy to tear down the main line, sounding a continuous succession of signals to the switch-tender.

Such frantic reiteration was not to be endured. Number two switch-tender obeyed the signal, and then three did the same. The three profoundly astonished switch-tenders gazed open-mouthed after a trail of smoke disappearing in the distance. The sound of a whistle came faint from the direction of the smoke, for Jimmy seemed to have formed the habit.

The fireman's first impulse had been to jump, but the rock looked hard and his mind grew numb, so that instead of jumping he became too terrified to act. The engine took the sharp curves with a violence that called for the fireman's undivided attention to avoid being blown off the boiler-head, and having the brains knocked out. As for Jimmy, the grin had broken upon his face. He sat upon his seat box, staring straight ahead, working the whistle lever like a automaton.

To our party, we were out for grandeur. We have seen more magnificent mountains and glittering glaciers, but when we reached the Grand Forks of the Fraser River, where the dark mountains seemed to have been torn asunder, we saw Mount Robson through the opening we took off our hats and sat our caucuses in silence. The Indians called this mountain Yah-hai-hun-kun, because a great gulch which furrows its face looks like Indians like a "real road." However, that was a trial, which even the red man refused to bear. For years trappers and Hudson Bay factors have spoken of Mount Robson as the grandest of the Yellowhead country, but the Indians are always for Yah-hui-hun-kun. That, they would argue, is the chief mountain of the Rockies. Because, by measurement, Brown, Hooker and Murchison fell short of expectations. Milton and Cheadle, who reported on the northwest passage, measured Mount Robson and found it towering 10,750 feet above the level of the Fraser and 3,700 feet above the sea. Thus the contents of the Indians have been verified as to the premier peak of the Canadian Rockies."

Saskatchewan's New Governor.

William Brown of Regina, who has been appointed to succeed Hon. A. E. Forget, as Lieutenant-Governor for the big province of Saskatchewan, is an old Ontario boy who has had a varied career. His parents, he struck out for the West and passed through a period as a homesteader on the Regina plains. He left, at leisure times, began the study of law, and was called to the Bar. Some years later he was the farmers' choice for North Regina, and sat in the Assembly at the prairie capital some twelve years. Later Mr. Brown retired from public practice, and turned to business. During these years of legal and Parliamentary activity Mr. Brown stuck to his farming operations, and he proved just as successful at that strenuous work as he was at his political career. On his return to the House of Assembly, he has come to the front by sheer force of character, having neither "pull" nor friend at court to "boost" him into public life. He was pointing away to another country when he met the Saskatchewan farmer (or who has the say in things out there), discovered he was the man they wanted to represent them and took up their interests in the legislature. His constituents used to say "See George about it" and that meant a lot! It meant the wonderful comradeship between the man and member and the men who believed in him. That explains George Brown's advancement in public life.

Reversed the Order.

A young clergyman who was a shy disposition, after an embarrassing start at his first marriage ceremony and unwittingly reversed the usual order of the service, thus making the bridegroom promise to love and obey the bride, was so mortified that he burst unnoticed at the time, but shortly afterward it dawned upon the father of the bride that a mistake had occurred, and he said to the clergyman: "I know Mr. Black, you have made John to promise to love and obey his daughter. Ah, well," he added after a pause and with a sly look at his better half, "I suppose it won't matter much; it generally comes to that in the end anyway."

Cat as Patient.

An outpatient at the Poplar Hospital for Accidents is Tiddies, a dark grey kitten six months old. Tiddies had the misfortune to slip into a copper of boiling water. It was promptly taken to the hospital by one of its guardians, a little girl, and out again. It was sure to be dead, to the fact that its name was Tiddies and that it lived in a basket being entered in the out-patients' ledger. Tiddies was tenderly massaged with olive oil, and was pronounced to be well enough to return to its home.

Orcid.

A Marseilles woman has been buried in her own piano at her own request. There are others who might be similarly interred by request of the folks next door. —Stratford Herald.

RAN DOWN THE "HILL."

Jimmy Fidler Holds a Record in Canada's New G.T.P. Line.

To Engineer Jimmy Fidler, once of the C.P.R., belongs the doubtful credit of having ridden a runaway engine the length of the Hill, which is the name for the great slope down Kicking Horse Pass in the Rockies. The railroads officials didn't exactly think the credit wasn't Jimmy's.

Jimmy started down the Big Hill

one summer day a dozen years ago with a light engine. He let the train get away with him, and when he himself approached the first safety-switch at much more than the eight miles an hour prescribed by the time card for light engines. The runaway was rapidly reversed to use the emergency of the air-breaks and give it sand. Having done this without producing any visible effect, Jimmy turned to the fireman with a sickly grin and shouted:

"Here goes for Field!"

He recanted for the whistle lever and sounded four impudent yells to impress the main line. Fearing that the signal might not be taken seriously, Jimmy repeated it, and then gave it a third and a fourth time. The switch-tender, who was the approaching engine, unmissably running away, and the rules warned him in big, black-faced type that under such circumstances it was to leave the switch set for the switch-tender, who wanted to meet his fate on the main line. As between obeying the rules and honoring a dying man, the switch-tender allowed Jimmy to tear down the main line, sounding a continuous succession of signals to the switch-tender.

Such frantic reiteration was not to be endured. Number two switch-tender obeyed the signal, and then three did the same. The three profoundly astonished switch-tenders gazed open-mouthed after a trail of smoke disappearing in the distance. The sound of a whistle came faint from the direction of the smoke, for Jimmy seemed to have formed the habit.

The fireman's first impulse had been to jump, but the rock looked hard and his mind grew numb, so that instead of jumping he became too terrified to act. The engine took the sharp curves with a violence that called for the fireman's undivided attention to avoid being blown off the boiler-head, and having the brains knocked out. As for Jimmy, the grin had broken upon his face. He sat upon his seat box, staring straight ahead, working the whistle lever like a automaton.

To our party, we were out for grandeur. A Lesson in Rowing.

Naturalists tell us that the male animals and birds delight in impressing the female with either their prowess or their beauty, but that is not a failing which is peculiar to the animal kingdom. On a windy afternoon several weeks ago a large crowd was going across to Hanlan's Point, Toronto, and a young couple were standing close to the front of the row. They commented on many things until they caught sight of a man in a row boat who was evidently crossing from the city.

"Oh, isn't he risky," said one of the girls.

"Especially as he does not know how to manage the boat properly," remarked the young man.

"Do not think it is brave to go out when you can't row. I think it foolish, said the girl.

Then the young men proceeded to give them an object lesson on rowing by pointing out all the "oarsman's mistakes." They told how he could manage the oars so that he could headway without doing it himself; they saw many little things which might have been improved upon in the way he handled his oars; in short the girls learned how not to row a boat in a storm and when to proceed with the knowledge of the young men.

As they neared the dock, the oarsman could be seen more plainly and it was possible to distinguish him.

An old man who had been listening to the obligations under which she has laid the nation at large and no monument of brass or marble can add to the glory that she has given her. Who can know her history and the reverence with which her name is regarded by those who know her and her work?

But it is notwithstanding, desirable that a permanent tribute of respect should be paid to the great lady who has given us such a glorious future for Miss Nightingale's work, so self-effacing and unobtrusive.

"We have no doubt," says the Hospital, "that some such fitting memorial will be erected in due course of time.

And Find Out If You Have Kidney Diseases. Also Make This Test.

Have you pains in the back over the kidneys?

Have you urinary disorders?

Do you suffer from severe headache, dizziness or defective eyesight?

Are you failing in health and strength, and suffering from rheumatic pains or swelling of the limbs?

These are a few of the symptoms of kidney disease, and here is the test:

If the urine remains cloudy for twenty-four hours it is cloudy, milky or has particles floating about in it, or if there is a sediment at the bottom of the vessel, your kidneys are diseased.

There is no time to lose in beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. Delay means the development of Bright's Disease, and you will want to take additional care with that.

Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills will help you more quickly than any other treatment you can obtain, and that is one reason why thousands of people are using them.

Mr. W. H. Moshier, South Augusta, Greenville County, Ont., writes: "I used Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills and believe there is no man who would be equal to me in trouble for years with kidney disease, and this treatment has cured me. I could only walk from my bed to a chair. Now I can walk and work like any other man. Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills are an excellent medicine. The statement is certified to by the Rev. E. H. Emett, Baptist minister of Brooklyn, Ont."

Keep Still

The man who can never think of the right thing to say at the right time can help some by making a violent effort at self-control and keeping still.—Somerville Journal.

To have the children sound and healthy is the first care of a mother. They cannot be healthy if troubled with worms. Use Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

"What an awful cold your husband has. He coughs and sneezes all the time."

"He does, but it amuses the baby splendidly,"—Sourire.

There are many Catrins in this section of the country, and after a few cases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable.

For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and precluded local remedies, and by consequence failing to cure it with general treatment, pronounced it incurable.

Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires a constitutional remedy.

H. H. Catarin, Gunna manufacturer by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills. He has learned through experience as have thousands of other Canadians that Dodd's Kidney Disease is unknown anywhere in this place. His statement given for publication is:

"For twelve years I had pains in the back and in the back. My head would ache and my muscles would cramp. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me.

"My wife was troubled with Kidney Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.

"My little girl had nervous trouble. She was so bad that she could not keep her hands and feet quiet. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.
